THE NATIONAL NETWORK FOR SOCIAL WORK MANAGERS

The National Network for Social Work Managers brings together social workers and managers from many other disciplines at all levels of management from the full range of human service organizations. The Network is dedicated to developing leadership, management skills, and mutually supportive relationships that advance organizational effectiveness. To accomplish these goals, NNSWM sponsors an annual conference through its National Training Institute that highlights cutting edge theories, trends, and practices in management. Outstanding managers and organizations are honored for their achievements. The Network has also established standards for excellence in human services management, together with a process of certification through the NNSWM Academy. The Certified Social Work Manager (CSWM) credential issued by the Academy recognizes those who meet this standard across the United States. In cooperation with Taylor and Frances publishers, the Network supports one of the nation's most important publications in social services management, Administration in Social Work.
